Shown here is the new windows reveals system with a flush shadow line. The trim being the same colour as the window frame gives interesting contrast and depth.

There is an option for a sunken trim also, both allowing the plasterboard to be finished up to the edge giving sleek and clean lines.

This is the ideal finish and companion to our large range of windows, doors and accessories.

The shadow line finish when used on windows and doors and a newly developed "sunken" skirting changes the impact completely from the conventional architrave finish.

The Architrave and reveals system shown here, would be hard to tell apart from what you would normally see, imagine the architrave in another colour, perhaps like the window frame.

What's the difference. This one does not need painting because it is in a durable powder coated aluminium. It is straight and will not warp with time.

We have complimenting skirting available to enhance the overall effect. This again could be in a contrasting colour or in the same colour as the architrave on the window.

METAL DOOR FRAMES. Are now available to suit a range of walling combinations stud size and plasterboard thickness.

The more conventional door frame with architraves is shown here, the architrave are the same as we use for the windows system ensuring uniformity of design and finish.

We have a matching metal skirting to compliment

If desired, the frame and architrave can be in differing colours to give the effect you are looking for in your home.

The door frame shown here features a shadow line rather than architraves. This again is identical to the windows treatment available in both a flush and sunken finish.

There is a newly developed "sunken" skirting that will give your house a completely different look and feel when used with the shadow line door frames and windows.

Use your favourite colour palette on these powder coated aluminium systems to achieve the look you want for your home
