

Our Mission

At Interpon we recognise your time is valuable and that your interest in powder coatings might not be as strong as ours. That's why our aim is to provide all the right tools, information and advice to make your choice of product and color as simple as possible.

Regardless of whether you're an architect, a specifier, a building developer, owner or project manager, we're here to help you make the right selection of powder coating for your particular application.

Color

A core part of our mission is to satisfy your need for color possibilities and flexibility. We love color as much as you, that's why we have invested heavily in ensuring we can match and produce nearly every color you could ever want, in the small batch sizes you need, and without the endless lead time you hate. Find out more.

Innovation

We strive to be the most innovative powder coatings supplier – not because it's a nice buzz word but because we know our customer's need the highest quality products for an ever evolving number of uses. Our coatings evolve and morph with many taking the place of traditional (and often costly or environmentally detrimental) finishes, like chrome plating. And to show our confidence we guarantee our architectural products with a tier system of Global warranties. Find out more on our product range.

Simplicity

What brings it all together and what time and again our customer's say about us; we're easy to do business with. We provide the service, expertise and tools to make it easy to select and specify our products right through to the application expertise of our representatives on the ground in the application plants.

Call us now to assist on your next project.